

PROF. ROBERT F. TURNER holds both professional and academic doctorates from the University of Virginia School of Law, where in 1981 he co-founded the Center for National Security Law. In addition to co-teaching advanced seminars on “War and Peace” and related issues at the Law School, he taught “U.S. Foreign Policy,” “International Law,” and two seminars in the UVA Department of Politics. He is also a former Charles H. Stockton Professor of International Law at the U.S. Naval War College and a Distinguished Lecturer at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. A former Army Captain and veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam, he has also served in the White House, as an adviser to a member of the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and as Acting Assistant Secretary of State for Legislative Affairs. In 1986 he became the first President of the United States Institute of Peace. He is an author or editor of eighteen books and monographs (two of them specifically about the 1973 War Powers Resolution) and numerous articles in newspapers and professional journals, including the New York Times, USA Today, Wall Street Journal, and International Herald Tribune. A former three-term Chairman of the American Bar Association’s Standing Committee on Law and National Security, Dr. Turner is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Academy of Political Science, and many other professional organizations. He has testified before more than a dozen different committees of the U.S. Congress.